

CAREER PREPARATION

Career preparation begins to build real job skills and gives students an opportunity to practice academic skills and work-readiness skills like teamwork and problem-solving. During internships, students perform real work over a set period of time.

Internships include paid and unpaid experiences during high school, clinical rotations associated with two and four year colleges, and summer programs.

www.worksite21.org